Hi, Faith,

Please call me Dewi.

I have sent out an e-mail to customer to ask for more info on the projected growth.
Let you know once I see a reply.

While I see your point of adding another layer at E450, my biggest concern will be space, manpower and ops, as our KPI for picking is only 30 minutes with 24x7 ops and skeleton team on weekends/PH.
Besides, we already have the storage rates for both the higher and lower pallet spaces in place, so altering E450 Even will have impact on existing revenue.

Thank you.

Hi Riyani,

As spoken, please provide more information regarding the Siemens' inventory growth. Are these existing SKUs or there will be new SKUs coming in?

Albert and myself went through the current pallets stored across E450 to E480 and we noticed that the average pallet height for majority of the inventory is 850mm. So we can insert one more tier or bay as you call it to create more locations. For your information, apart from E450 which is configured as 5 tiers (bays), the rest of the rackings (E460 to E480) are configured as 6 tiers (bays).

As for E440, please provide the forecasted growth for each SKU and carton dimension for ease of configuration and proposal.

Thank you.

Hi, Peng Yee,

I will draft up the proposed configuration (or can someone help?) for your perusal and approval this week, before submitting it to customer.

For E450, it is estimated to be around 72 new pallet locations, with a height of 1.5 m each.

Thank you.

Hi Darren,

A quick update for location E450 Odd, during the last 2 weekend the team have move all archived document to the cage.

Those pallets left on the shelf and on the some on the floors are from MCL5 (CISCO)
